Abstract

This sociolinguistic survey of selected Scheduled Tribes in the Palakkad district of Kerala was sponsored and carried out under the auspices of the Indian Institute for Cross-Cultural Communication (IICCC), which is interested in sociolinguistic research and advocating mother tongue literature and literacy among minority people groups. The project started in December 2002 and fieldwork was finished by the end of March 2003. The report was written in August 2004. Researchers in addition to the author included Bijumon Varghese and Jose P. Mathew.

This report tells about the unique social and linguistic features exhibited by the different tribes found in the Palakkad district. The broad purposes of this project were to investigate five areas: (1) investigate the speech varieties currently spoken among the tribes of Palakkad and their relationship with the languages of wider communication, Malayalam [mal], and neighbouring state language, Tamil [tam]; (2) assess the degree of variation within each speech variety of the Palakkad district; (3) evaluate the extent of bilingualism among minority language communities in Kerala's state language, Malayalam; (4) investigate the patterns of language use, attitudes, and vitality; and (5) find out what materials are available about the tribal groups of the Palakkad district.

The primary tribal languages observed were Irula [iru], Muduga [udg], Attapady Kurumba [pkr], Malasar [vmr], Mala Malasar [ima], Kadar [kei], and Eravallan [era].

[This survey report written some time ago deserves to be made available even at this late date. Conditions were such that it was not published when originally written. The reader is cautioned that more recent research may exist. Historical data is quite valuable as it provides a basis for a longitudinal analysis and helps us understand both the trajectory and pace of change as compared with more recent studies.—Editor]

1 Introduction

1.1 Geography

The Palakkad district is located very close to the central part of Kerala bordering with Tamil Nadu. This hilly district is devoid of any sea coast. The district is bounded on the north and east by the Nilgiri and Coimbatore districts of Tamil Nadu, respectively, and west and south by the Malappuram and Thrissur districts of Kerala, respectively. The Palakkad district is politically divided into five tahsils (taluks) namely Palakkad, Mannarkad, Chittoor, Alathoor, and Ottapalam.

Due to its geographical position, Palakkad plays a strategic role in the life of Kerala. Before the commissioning of Konkan Railway along the western coast, Palakkad was the gateway to Kerala from elsewhere in the country. The colossal Western Ghats stretch over 960 kilometres in length. Their continuity is broken in the Palakkad district, at a place known as "Palakkad Gap" with a width of 32 kilometres. The climate of Palakkad is highly influenced by this gap, as it enables the northeast winds to pass through it. This phenomenon gives the benefit of both southwest and northeast winds, resulting in rainfall to the district during the monsoon. Palakkad is well connected by both rail and road.

The Palakkad district is predominantly an agricultural area. The main crop is paddy, which is grown in three seasons. Palakkad, the largest producer of rice in Kerala, is known as the granary of the state. Other important crops include sugarcane, groundnut, areca nut, cotton, rubber, cardamom, and coffee. The district has several rivers, including Bharathapuzha, the longest river in the state. Bhavani and Siruvani rivers are other important rivers of the district. There are several irrigation projects in the Palakkad district. This hilly district has 136,257 hectares of reserve forest including Silent Valley and Parambikulam.

In history, this area had a significant role. It witnessed the invasion of many neighbouring rulers over a period of time. The fortress that stands at the centre of the Palakkad town reveals the majesty and great history of this district.

1.2 People

The Palakkad district gives shelter to different people groups. Compared with many other districts of Kerala, this district is characterized more with Tamil settlers and Tamil culture. This is partly because of the gap in the Western Ghat which allows freer access between the Palakkad district of Kerala and Coimbatore district of Tamil Nadu. According to the 2001 census, the total population of the Palakkad district is 2,382,236. The same census also noted that 84 percent of the population are literate.

Various castes and tribes are found in the Palakkad district. Communities like the Ezhavar, Nayar, Pardeshi Brahmanar, Chettis, Mutthans, and Ezhuthachan are major Hindu castes in this area. Among them, the population of Ezhavar is very high. Of the tribal groups, the main inhabitants are Irular, Mudugar, Kurumbar, Malasar, Kadar, Maha Malasar, and Eravallan. The tribal population in the district based on the 1991 census is 35,465. The settlements of Irular, Malasar, and Eravallar are also found in the Coimbatore district.

Different religions are found in Palakkad. The followers of Hinduism, Islam, Christianity, and Animism live in unity, and Palakkad is one place where the tragedy of racial problems has not been found.

¹The researchers have treated Malasar and Malayar as one group (using the term Malasar), though the government census lists them as separate Scheduled Tribes. More discussion about this issue can be seen in section 2.4.

1.3 Languages

Palakkad has speakers of different regional and tribal languages. It represents the speakers of all major south Indian languages like Malayalam [mal], Tamil [tam], Kannada [kan], and Telugu [tel]. The state language Malayalam is the language of wider communication in Palakkad. Tamil has the second largest number of speakers after Malayalam. Urdu [urd] is also spoken, mainly by Muslims.

At least seven tribal mother tongues are spoken in the Palakkad district: Irula [iru], Muduga [udg], Kurumba³, Malasa [ymr], Mala Malasa [ima], Kada [kej], and Eravalla [era] (see map 1). All of these tribal languages originated from the Dravidian language family. The Irula and Malasa languages have larger number of speakers, whereas the Kada and Malasa languages have fewer speakers. The Eravallar community is more fond of Tamil and only a few among them are using their traditional language.

Many language experts and university students have analysed the languages and cultures of these tribal groups. A good collection of information can be seen in The Encyclopaedia of Dravidian Tribes published by the Dravidian Linguistic Association and edited by Madhava Menon. It states that Eravallar use a "poor dialect of Tamil" and that the people are bilingual in Malayalam which they use for communication with others. The book also reports that Irula is an independent member of the Dravidian family, which branched off from a Proto-Tamil-Irula stem before Proto-Tamil divided into the Western and Eastern dialects, which in turn gave rise to Malayalam and Tamil.

Menon further states that the Kada language is identified as a separate language. The phonology of Kada is related to Tamil whereas the vocabulary has a closer relationship with Malayalam. Mala Malasar speak a dialect of Tamil, officially described as "Malasir." A few of them also know Malayalam. According to Menon, among Malayan (Malasar), there are two sub-tribes, Nattu Malayan and Kong Malayan. Nattu Malayan speak a dialect of Malayalam with a lot of Tamil admixture, which is not intelligible to the plains Malayalis. Kong Malayan speak Tamil as their mother tongue. The speech of the Nattu Malayan and that of the Kong Malayan are not intelligible to each other. Few among both groups know Malayalam and Kannada.

Literacy Mission of Kerala and Attapady Hill Area Development Society (AHADS) have developed some literacy materials in the Irula, Muduga, and Kurumba languages. The script used in these materials is Malayalam. The researchers found that some portions of the Bible, a few songs, and one drama have been translated into Irula.

² Ethnologue (Gordon 2005) ISO language codes are listed only with the first occurrence of each language name in this report.

³ Kurumba ISO codes are separated into six different divisions of Kurumba: Betta [xub], Kannada [kfi], Alu [xua], Attapady [pkr], Jennu [xuj], and Mullu [kpb].

1.4 Purpose and goals

The purpose of this sociolinguistic survey among the tribes of the Palakkad district of Kerala was to investigate the need for language development and literacy work among them for the welfare of the community.

The goals of the project were:

1. Investigate the speech varieties currently spoken among the tribes of Palakkad and their relationship with the languages of wider communication, Malayalam and neighbouring state language, Tamil.

(Wordlists, published materials, and questionnaires)

- 2. Assess the degree of variation within each speech variety of the Palakkad district. (Wordlists, Recorded Text Test (RTT), questionnaires, and informal interviews)
- 3. Evaluate the extent of bilingualism among minority language communities in Kerala's state language, Malayalam.

(Malayalam SRT, Questionnaires, and observation)

- 4. Investigate the patterns of language use, attitudes, and vitality.
 - (Questionnaires, observation, and informal interviews)
- 5. Find out what materials are available about the tribal groups of the Palakkad district. (Ouestionnaires and library research)

2 Tribes of Palakkad

The 2001 census gives the list of 31 Scheduled Tribes found in the Palakkad district. Seven tribal groups mentioned in chapter one (Irular, Mudugar, Kurumbar, Malasar, Mala Malasar, Kadar, and Eravallar) are the main inhabitants of this district. The remaining groups' major population is in other districts and very few from those tribes are represented in the Palakkad district.

In Palakkad, tribal concentration is mainly found in two areas: Mannarkad taluk (Attapady block) and Chittoor taluk. The first (and more well-known) is Attapady block of Mannarkad taluk, which is the most northern taluk, bordering Tamil Nadu. There are 171 tribal hamlets in Attapady populated by three tribal groups, Irular, Mudugar, and Kurumbar. Among them the Kurumbar are the least developed, whereas the Irular are more advanced and numerically dominant (over 80 percent of the tribal population). The Attapady block is an area classified as the first Integrated Tribal Development Block of Kerala.

The second major domicile of tribals is in Chittoor taluk. The major tribes in this locality are Malasar, Kadar, Mala Malasar, and Eravallar. They are mainly found south of Palakkad Gap, in Parambikulam Wild Life Sanctuary, and in the plantation hills of Nelliyampathy. Malasar, Kadar and Mala Malasar are mainly landless communities and have settled inside the reserved forest in plots allotted them by the government. The areas occupied by Eravallar are now virtually devoid of forests, and have been converted to agricultural lands and human settlements. Mala Malasar and Kadar are considered the least developed and have lower population compared with Malasar and Eravallar.

A small section of Irular and Malasar are also found in the Walayar panchayath of Palakkad taluk. Menon categorises these Irular as Urali Irular.

Table 1 shows an overall view of the major tribal groups in the Palakkad district. Generally, an "r" ending denotes the people name (e.g., Irular, Mudugar, Kurumbar) and an "a" ending usually denotes the language name (e.g., Irula, Muduga, Kurumba).

2.1 Irular

Irular is one of the largest people groups in South India. The word Irula is probably derived from the Tamil word irul 'darkness'. "Irular" is a general term used to cover as many as seven tribal groups, some of whom are considered to be ethnically and linguistically unrelated. Table 2 gives the general picture about all these groups.

Ernest notes what Perialwar (1991:47) wrote on the subject, "Excluding the different Irular found in the districts of Nilgiri, Coimbatore, and Periyar of Tamil Nadu and the Palakkad district of Kerala, all other Irular found in Tamil Nadu are linguistically and ethnically different." The linguistic and cultural differences that exist between Melenadu Irular, Vettekad Irular, and Urali Irular have been studied by various researchers. Ernest observes that Melenadu Irular and Vettekad Irular speak slightly different dialects of Irula language.

Ernest also discusses that, according to Mohan Lal, no linguistic or social contact exists between Urali Irular (Sathyamangalam) and Irular of Nilgiri. He distinguishes Urali Irula as "a distinct speech variety" (Ernest 1993:5,6). In this survey, the focus was to analyse the sociolinguistic situation of Irular who live in Kerala and evaluate how far they are related to Irular (Vettekad Irular and Melenadu Irular) who live in the nearby Coimbatore and Nilgiri districts in Tamil Nadu.

In Palakkad, Irula people are located in the Mannarkad taluk (Attapady block) and Palakkad taluk (Walayar panchayath). Among the various subtribes of Irular, Irular of Attapady block belong to Vettekad Irular. The Irular who live in Walayar area seem to be different from Vettekad Irular. Menon identifies them as "Urali"; however, the people identify themselves as Irular.

According to the 1991 census, the total population of Irular in the Palakkad district is 21,726, with over 85 percent in Attapady and the rest in Walayar. There are 95 Irula settlements found in Attapady. The same census also returns that 30 percent of the Irula population are literate (34 percent among males and 26 percent among females).

Perialwar states that Vettekad Irular originally came from the "Vettekad" Irula areas of the Coimbatore district, through a mass migration during the end of the sixteenth and beginning of the seventeenth centuries (Ernest 1991:44). They have probably occupied this area following the Kurumbas and Mudugas.

The Irula's traditional occupations were hunting and gathering, trapping of birds and animals, shifting cultivation, animal husbandry and pastoralism. At present, they are primarily engaged in settled cultivation and agricultural labours, with a smaller number involved in animal husbandry, basket and mat making, and various other occupations.

Each settlement has a head "mooppan" for taking communal decisions. However, there has recently been a decline in his authority. Eleven exogamous clans (kulam) have been identified within the Attapady Irular. These are Arumoopan, Samar, Karatti, Kurangan, Vellaka, Devana, Kuppli, Kupper, Pungar, Perathara, and Uppili.

The 1991 census records 99.96 percent of their total population as Hindus. Their sacred specialist functions through the role of medicine man (Menon 1996:60–65).

Irula is considered as a separate dialect, classified under Dravidian, Southern, Tamil-Kannada, Tamil-Kodagu, Tamil-Malayalam, Tamil (Gordon 2000). As noted in the previous chapter, Menon reports that the Irula language is an independent member of the Dravidian family, which branched off from a Proto-Tamil-Irula stem before Proto-Tamil divided into the Western and Eastern dialects, which in turn gave rise to Malayalam and Tamil. The dialects of Irula according to the Ethnologue are as follows: Mele Nadu Irula, Vettekad Irula, Irula Pallar, Northern Irula, and Urali. It is possible that Irula Pallar is just an alternate name for Vettekad Irula and not a separate dialect.

According to Perialwar, cited by Ernest (1993:6), the Attapady Irula dialect is divergent from those in Tamil Nadu, although there are some marital alliances between the Attapady Irula and the Vettekad Irula of Coimbatore district. Menon (1996:61) notes that according to Luiz, Irular in Attapady are bilingual with Tamil and Malayalam, and use the Malayalam script.

2.2 Mudugar

Mudugar is another tribal community in Palakkad. They are settled in about 18 hamlets around the Malleswaran Peak in the Attapady block of Mannarkad taluk. According to the 1991 census, the population of Mudugar is 3,370.⁴ The same census also reports that 25 percent (31 percent among men and 17 percent among women) of the community are literate, making this one of the least literate communities in the state.

It is believed that the Mudugar were the original inhabitants of Coimbatore and later moved westward due to persecution and exploitation by more dominant communities. They are believed to be the earliest immigrants of the Attapady region before the fifteenth century and to be of Tamil origin. They do not have any tradition of migration. The community has been under rapid transition during the last few decades, especially after Indian independence.

Land alienation is the major problem faced by this community. In the past, their settlements were mostly in the private forests owned by a few landlords of the plains. Later, settlers from the southern districts of Kerala obtained rights of cultivation from the landlords. Over a period of time these settlers became owners of the land which used to be with the Mudugar (Menon 1996:266–274). The Mudugar practised shifting cultivation, trapping of small animals, and collection of minor forest produce. Now, most of the Mudugar are compelled to take up casual agriculture labour under the "settlers." Their habitat has been altered completely from the original semi-evergreen forest conditions and is now cultivated with the miscellaneous horticultural crops typical of homestead farming in Kerala.

The Mudugar community lives in small groups of families called uru meaning village. Traditionally each hamlet had a regularly constituted hierarchy of social functionaries with the head called urumoopan. But nowadays the social cohesion has been loosened. There are four matrilineal exogamous groups in Mudugar and cross-cousin marriage is preferred. They consider themselves as equals to the Kurumbar with whom they enter into inter-marriages. The Mudugar feel that Irular are inferior. Mudugar tend to acculturate with the Kerala settlers rather than with Tamiliyans. They are enthusiastic singers and dancers. They also perform sorcery and have great knowledge in traditional medicine.

Mudugar are classified under Hindus. The Hinduism which they profess has been the result of gradual acculturation. Their original objects of worship have been the natural geographical features and material objects. Among geographical features, Malleswaran Peak is the most important. Material objects include peculiar stone, relics of ancestors (including animal bones), and all "movable" deities, which are kept under the custody of mannukaran. The most important religious event in Muduga life is the annual pilgrimage to Malleswaran Peak on Shivarathri. Some of them now have become Christians (Menon 1996:266–272).

The Mudugar community speak their tribal language, Muduga, which is an unclassified Dravidian language (Gordon 2000). According to Menon, Muduga is closer to Kannada than to Tamil. The majority of the vocabulary items are similar to Malayalam, while the influence of Kannada and Tulu are also noticeable, with some items peculiar to Muduga. According to Rajendran, who studied the Muduga speech in detail for the first time, Muduga is not a dialect of Tamil, Malayalam, or Kannada. Though it has some similarities with Tamil in the area of grammatical structure, it cannot be treated as a dialect of Tamil. There are evidences of some peculiar features of Muduga that distinguish this language in the Dravidian family (Menon 1996:274).

⁴The population table for Mudugar includes the population of Muthuvan, an entirely different community, as the Census Bureau of India did not separate these two groups. Muthuvan is found in only one settlement in Palakkad and mostly in the Idukki district of Kerala. Therefore, this table mostly represents Mudugar.

2.3 Kurumbar

The term Kurumbar is shared by five tribal groups who are found in the Western Ghats (politically part of the Mysore, Nilgiri, Wayanad, Coimbatore, and Palakkad districts). The term Kurumbar is also used for Kurumbar Gounder, a scheduled caste living in the plains of Coimbatore and a few other districts of Tamil Nadu. Various studies have shown that there is more disparity between these groups than similarity. Table 3 gives a general picture about all these Kurumbar groups. Separate populations are not available for many of these groups other than Kurumbar in general.

People	Alternative Names	District	Population	Language
Kurumbar	Pal Kurumbar	Palakkad	1,368	Kurumba
Alu Kurumbar	-	Nilgiri, Coimbatore	About 10,000	Alu Kurumba
Betta Kurumbar	Betta Kurumbar (Nilgiri), Urali Kuruman (Wayanad), Kadu Kurumbar (Karnataka)	Nilgiri, Wayanad, Mysore, Kodagu	About 100,000	Betta Kurumba or Urali Kurumba or Kadu Kurumba
Jennu Kurumbar	Jennu Kurumbar (Karnataka), Ten Kurumbar (Tamil Nadu), Kattu Naikkar (Wayanad)	Nilgiri, Wayanad, Mysore, Kodagu	About 100,000	Jennu Kurumba or Ten Kurumba or Kattunaika
Mullu Kurumbar	Mullu Kuruman (Wayanad), Mullu Kuruman or Mullu Kurumbar in Tamil Nadu	Wayanad, Nilgiri	About 25,000	Mullu Kuruma or Mullu Kurumba
Kurumba Gounder	Kurumba Gounder	Coimbatore, Teni, Dindugal, Pudukottai etc.	1 to 1.5 million	Kurumba Kannada

Table 3. Overview of Kurumbar groups

Kurumbar in Attapady is also known as Pal Kurumbar. According to Menon, the Alu Kurumbas of the Nilgiris and Pal Kurumbas of Attapady seem to be two segments of the same tribe, since the clan structure indicates that they are identical. However, they have separated from each other because of territorial separation and no contact exists between them. Intermarriages between Alu and Pal Kurumba seem to be rare (Menon 1996:170). The lexical study conducted by Selvaraj (1999:8) shows that Alu Kurumba in Nilgiri and the Pal Kurumba speech variety in Attapady share low similarity (50 percent) and may be considered as different languages. Thus, there was no further attempt made during this survey to compare the linguistic relationship of Alu Kurumba and Pal Kurumba in Attapady, since the researchers felt that the two are considerably different in many of the features they exhibit now. The term Kurumbar in this report is exclusively used to denote the Pal Kurumbar of Palakkad.

Kurumbar in Attapady are a hill tribe who have settled in the steeply sloping tract of thick forest. They are less developed comparatively with the three tribes in Attapady. Approximately twenty Kurumbar settlements are found in the steep walled narrow valley of the Bhavani. The hills they inhabit adjoin the Silent Valley Forests and the Nilgiris Biosphere Reserve.

The population of Kurumbar in Palakkad is 1,368 according to the 1991 census. The same census also reports the literacy rate of Kurumbar as 23 percent (27 percent among men and 15 percent among women). Very few schools are located in or near their settlements. Difficulties in understanding Malayalam (the medium of instruction in school) and lack of accessibility to schools are two of the many reasons accountable for Kurumbar's illiteracy.

Each village has a headman for social control selected by heredity or elective choice. Formerly, the people stayed in bamboo huts. In the present day, the government builds most of their houses. Anavayi is considered their original settlement (Menon 1996:175).

The community seems to be very rarely growing food crops. Many times wild elephants and pigs destroy their plants. In the present day, they prefer to buy food items rather than cultivate it. Of late, the cultivation of ganja is being spread in the Kurumba heartlands by well-organised gangs. Kurumbar have embraced this cultivation as it gives them huge income revenue with little effort. By assisting outsiders or occupying ganja plantations by themselves, Kurumbar enhanced their purchasing power. As the people began to earn more income through this illegal method, many of their lives entered disarray and they became addicted to liquor and other bad habits. Ganja smoking is a common habit among the men.

Kurumbar have intermarriage with Mudugar and not with Irular. They consider Irular as inferior to them. Some outside settlers have married Kurumbar women and have settled in Kurumba villages. Mat weaving and basketry are the crafts of Kurumbar. Both men and women among them perform folk-dances.

The census records the Kurumbar as followers of Hinduism. Along with Mudugar and Irular, Kurumbar also treats the Malleswaran Peak as their village deity. They worship ancestor spirits pai as their clan deities. They have sacred specialists for their ceremonies. They celebrate Ammapooja, Paipooja, and Nombi festivals.

Kurumbar have their own traditional language and it shows the features of other south Indian Dravidian languages. Since they are isolated, they are not eloquent in using Malayalam or Tamil. Most of the women are unable to speak any other language besides Kurumba. Despite the dissimilarity that exists between the Kurumba, Muduga, and Irula languages, each group uses its mother tongue to communicate with the others.

2.4 Malasar

Menon (1996:237) notes that according to Luiz, "Malasar is the generic name of three groups of tribes known as Maha or Malai Malasar, Mahcarivan Malasar and Nattu Malasar. The last two refer to the same group and the first named has nothing in common with the other two." Malasar is also known as Malayar. The people group interchangeably uses these two terms to identify themselves. The term Malasar seems to be more related to Tamil and the term Malayar to Malayalam. The term Malasar is used in this report to refer to this group.

Malasar are found in the south of Palakkad Gap and occupy the moist deciduous forest. Politically the areas come under the Chittoor and Palakkad taluks of Palakkad district and the adjoining taluk of Pollachi in Coimbatore district.

The list of Scheduled Tribes in Kerala has reported the population of Malasar and Malayar separately. Based on the 1991 census, there are 1,061 Malasar and 2,510 Malayar people living in the Palakkad district. It also reports a total of 4,889 Malasar people in Tamil Nadu. The same census also reports that 29 percent of Malasar and 41 percent of Malayar are literate. A similar literacy rate is expected in Tamil Nadu as well.

⁵This percentage also represents the Kurumbar in Wayanad. Separate tables for each district are not available.

Malasar are divided into two sub-tribes, the Nattu (native to Kerala) and the Konga (immigrant from Tamil Nadu). They do not intermarry or inter-dine. The Nattu consider the Konga as polluting and have no social relationships with them. Their settlements are separate.

Malasar believe that they originated in Kongu Nadu, now part of Coimbatore district. In the Parambikulam area, they have been allotted small plots in their settlements for cultivation. However, the yield is mainly raided by wild pigs. The collection of forest product is hardly sufficient to meet their requirements. Some get casual remuneration by acting as guides to tourists. In Nelliyampathy, many of them are working as estate labourers in the tea, cardamom, and coffee plantations. They are a landless community and are now fighting to be given the land.

In forested areas, Malasar reside in the colonies where the government has built houses for them, whereas in Nelliyampathy they live in estate quarters provided by the plantation companies for whom they work. They are an endogamous group without any exogamous subdivisions.

They worship a spirit called Mallung represented by a stone encircled by a wall, which serves as a temple, where they sacrifice goats and cocks. In the present day, Malasar like to be known as Hindus. Some Malasar families have recently converted to Christianity.

Menon reports that the speech of Nattu Malasar is a dialect of Malayalam with a lot of Tamil admixture, which is not intelligible to the plains Malayalis. He reports Kong Malasar to speak Tamil as their mother tongue (Menon 1996:247).

2.5 Mala Malasar

The Mala Malasar (or Maha Malasar) are a distinct tribal community who inhabit the hilly terrain and dense forest area of the Western Ghats. They are mainly located in the border area of Palakkad district of Kerala (Parambikulam wild life sanctuary) and Coimbatore district of Tamil Nadu (Anamalai hills).

The words Mala ('hill') and Malasar ('king of the hill') together mean 'the king of the forest'. As implied by their name, they consider themselves superior to other tribes. Menon (1996:195) notes that according to Luiz, "The only information they readily furnished about their origin is that they are a primitive Kattu Jathi (forest tribe) and early aboriginals." The total population of Mala Malasar according to the 1991 census is 136 (10 in Kerala and 126 in Tamil Nadu). It is believed that their population might have been included with the Malasar or Malayan by the government. The researchers believe that the population of the Mala Malasar is around 1,000 people. The literacy rate of Mala Malasar seems to be very low. The researchers visited one village and found that nobody was literate among them. Few younger children are currently attending school.

Culturally, Mala Malasar are very distinct to other neighbouring tribal groups. There exists no social division among them. To maintain social control, the community has a council of elderly men (payals) headed by a chief. Mala Malasar strictly forbid intermarriage and do not inter-dine with other groups. Monogamy is the norm among them and divorce and remarriage is permissible. Rice is their staple food. They bury the dead and observe death pollution for three to seven days.

Opportunities for employment have been created through several schemes, but the people have not responded enthusiastically. According to them, road transport, electricity, and child welfare facilities are insufficient.

Mala Malasar profess Hinduism and they consider Mala Daivam ('god of the hills') as their community deity. Ponkal, also called Pongal, and Nambi are their major festivals. They have their own folk-song and dance along with percussion and wind instruments.

Menon (1996:196) writes that they speak a dialect of Tamil, officially described as "Malasir." A few of them also know Tamil and Malayalam. They use Malayalam script in Kerala and Tamil script in Tamil Nadu.

2.6 Kadar

There are three groups with the name Kadar in Kerala and Tamil Nadu. The Kadar who speak the Kada language are inhabitants primarily in the hills of Palakkad and Thrissur, as well as Coimbatore. Another group of Kadar is living in the Wayanad district and speak Malayalam. One more tribe with the name of Kadar (or Kadir) is found in the Triuchirapalli and Tanjavur districts of Tamil Nadu. They have nothing in common with the Kadar of the Western Ghats. According to the 1991 census, the population of Kadar in the Palakkad and Thrissur districts is 514 and 655, respectively, and in the Coimbatore district, 791.

The "Kadar land" lies at the intersection of the Palakkad, Thrissur, and Coimbatore districts. The terrain is hilly with dense forests, with an average elevation of 700 metres. The bulk of the area is in the Parambikulam Valley in the catchment areas of the Chalakudi River (Menon 1996:78).

The Kadar may be considered the best representative of the integrated food-gathering tribes of south India. Until World War II, they were comparatively isolated except for the forest officers who had started highly selective teak plantations in some of their homelands. The need of irrigation and power in Tamil Nadu resulted in the construction of a series of massive dams over the tributaries of the Chalakudi River. This led to the opening up of the Kadar habitat to the general population. Iyer, cited in Menon (1996:78), thought that they were originally cave dwellers who put up leaf shelters against the wind and weather when away from their houses. Generally, their settlements consist of three to fifteen huts of the simplest character. In the present day, Kadar live in settled colonies with the extension of the government's exploitation of the forest as a resource.

The Kadar children going to school learn either Tamil or Malayalam, depending upon whether the school is in Kerala or Tamil Nadu. They speak Malayalam or Tamil with outsiders. The script used for writing is Malayalam in Kerala and Tamil in Tamil Nadu. The Kadar children generally study up to the primary or secondary level. According to the 1991 census, 39 percent of them are listed as literate, men 41 percent and women 37 percent.

Formerly, the Kadar were hunters and gatherers. In the present day, many of them have become settled cultivators, agricultural labourers, basket makers, mat-weavers, and petty shop owners. A few are engaged in government services as forest guards and peons. The seasonal collection of minor forest produce also contributes to their income. The majority of the workers are engaged in livestock, forestry, hunting, or gathering. Women contribute their labour to animal husbandry, the collection of fuel, fetching potable water and other economic activities.

It is believed that there are as many as seven Mala Daivam or Makannimar deities and their blessings are invoked for a plentiful supply of roots, tubers, and minor forest produce. The Kadar propitiate many female and male tree spirits, known as muni. They profess Hinduism and worship village and regional deities as well as deities of the wider Hindu pantheon. According to the 1991 census, 100 percent of them were followers of Hinduism.

Kadar in Palakkad speak Kada Bhasha, which has no script. Kadar Bhasha is part of the Dravidian, Southern, Tamil-Kannada, Tamil-Kodagu, Tamil-Malayalam, Malayalam language family. Grimes notes that according to Thundyil, Kada Bhasha is close to Malayalam, but is a separate language. Yet according to Singh, Kada language is close to Tamil (Grimes 2001).

2.7 Eravallan

Eravallan is also known as Villu Vedans. The term means 'hunters with bows and arrows'. Luiz interpreted the word Eravallan to be derived from eravan meaning 'beggar', because some among them were professional beggars (Menon 1996:46).

Eravallar are distributed in the Chittoor taluk of Palakkad district and adjoining part of Coimbatore district. The area occupied is in the shadow of the southern ridge of the Palakkad Gap in the Western Ghats. Once the area was forest, but it is now virtually devoid of woodlands and has been converted to agricultural lands and human settlements. According to the 1991 census the population of Eravallar is 3,139 in Kerala and 2,525 in Tamil Nadu.

The traditional occupations of the Eravallar were agriculture, hunting, and gathering, which are still pursued by some. Their children also work and earn wages. A few of them own land and are cultivators. Others are daily wage labourers, stone workers, or employees in government offices.

Eravallar do not have any tribal assembly to settle disputes or to enforce the norms. However Iyer reported (in Menon 199647) that "disputes seldom occur among them." The families are patriarchal with the father's authority being supreme.

A few of the Eravallar are followers of the traditional tribal religion and believe in demons (boodamn). They fear these demons and believe that the world is full of them. The rest of the group profess Hinduism and worship Kali, Kannimars, Muni, and Karuppayya. Iyer described them as "animists, worshiping animals, trees, stones, hills, etc." All of them were reported as followers of Hinduism, according to the 1991 census.

According to Menon (1996:46), in Kerala the people speak "a poor dialect of Tamil." In Tamil Nadu they speak a dialect of Tamil for intragroup communication and use the Tamil script.

3 Dialect areas

One of the primary goals of this survey was to investigate the speech varieties currently spoken among the tribes of Palakkad and their relationships with the languages of wider communication, Malayalam and the neighbouring state language, Tamil. The main tool utilised to accomplish this objective was lexical comparisons of wordlists. Another goal was to assess the degree of variation within each speech variety of the Palakkad district. Wordlists and dialect comprehension testing using Recorded Text Testing (RTT) were used for this study. Post-RTT questions and informal interviews were also used to form judgments about the relationship within particular speech varieties. These methods and their findings will be discussed in this chapter.

3.1 Lexical similarity

One method of assessing the relationship among speech varieties is to compare the degree of similarity in their vocabularies. This is referred to as lexical similarity. Speakers of varieties that have more terms in common (thus a higher percentage of lexical similarity) generally, though not always, understand one another better than speakers of varieties that have fewer terms in common do. Since only elicited words and simple verb constructions are analysed by this method, lexical similarity comparisons alone cannot indicate how well certain speech communities understand one another. It can, however, assist in obtaining a broad perspective of the relationships among speech varieties and give support for results using more sophisticated testing methods, such as comprehension studies.

3.1.1 Procedures

The tool used for determining lexical similarity in this survey was a 210-item wordlist, consisting of items of basic vocabulary, which has been standardised and contextualised for use in sociolinguistic surveys of this type in South Asia. The elicited words were transcribed using the International Phonetic Alphabet (IPA) shown in appendix A. To provide maximum reliability, some of the wordlists were checked with a second mother tongue speaker at the same site.

Each wordlist was compared with every other wordlist, item by item, to determine the degree of phonetic similarity. Those words that were judged similar were grouped together. Once the entire wordlist was evaluated, the total number of word pair similarities was tallied. This amount was then divided by the total number of items compared and multiplied by 100, giving what is called the lexical similarity percentage.

This process of evaluation was carried out according to standards set forth in Blair 1990:30–33 and facilitated using a computer program called WordSurv (Wimbish 1989). This program is designed to quickly perform the counting of word pair similarities and to calculate the lexical similarity percentage between each pair of wordlists. For a more complete description of counting procedures used in determining lexical similarity, refer to appendix B.

3.1.2 Site selection

Twenty-four wordlists were compared in this lexical similarity study. Villages from Irular, Mudugar, Kurumbar, Kadar, Malasar, Mala Malasar, and Eravallar communities were selected for wordlist studies.

Excluding Malayalam, Tamil, Kannada, and Alu Kurumba, the other wordlists were collected during this survey. Important factors for collecting wordlists were geographical distribution (interior/exterior), reported dialect variation, cultural importance, size of the village, and population of the people group.⁶

The greatest number of wordlists was collected from the Irular community, since Irular is the largest people group in this study. Wordlists were collected to find out whether there was any dialect variation within Palakkad district varieties (Attapady Irula and Walayar Irula) and between the Palakkad district and Coimbatore district (Vettekad Irula) varieties. One wordlist from Nilgiri district was included in this study to see the overall lexical similarity shared between Irula varieties from different places. A thorough study of Nilgiri Irula was looked at in a previous study. In total, nine Irula wordlists were compared in this study, representing seven locations from Kerala and two from Tamil Nadu.

Two wordlists from Mudugar, Kurumbar, and Kadar were collected. Greater importance was given to see the lexical relationship these minority speech varieties share with the state languages than within themselves. However, a wordlist of Alu Kurumba from Nilgiri was included in the study to see the lexical similarity percentage shared between Kurumbar of Attapady and Alu Kurumbar of Nilgiri. Only one wordlist from Mala Malasar was collected since they have fewer speakers. Malasar people speak a form of Tamil; two wordlists were collected based on their geographical differences. One wordlist from Eravallar was also collected to check the kind of speech variety they use.

Finally, three standard wordlists (one from Malayalam, the official language of Kerala; one from Tamil, the state language of Tamil Nadu; and one from Kannada, the state language of Karnataka) were included in the lexical similarity comparison with the tribal varieties spoken in Palakkad. Information about all wordlists compared in this study is found in table 4.

⁶It was found that most villages were interior.

3.1.3 Results and analysis

Table 5 shows the lexical similarity percentage of wordlists compared in this study. According to Blair (1990:24), it can typically be concluded that two speech varieties that have less than 60 percent lexical similarity are different languages. For speech varieties that have greater than 60 percent lexical similarity, intelligibility testing should be done to determine their relationship.

In the following analysis and discussion, wordlists are grouped in different clusters based on the particular people group and area they represent. The study gives more emphasis to the lexical relationships of each tribal variety with Malayalam and Tamil as well as within each tribal variety, rather than between the different tribal groups' varieties. However, some attention is given to explain the highest lexical similarity shared between different groups.

Table 6 shows the ranges of lexical similarity between each tribal variety in the Palakkad district with Malayalam and Tamil.

Tribal Variety	Malayalam	Tamil
Attapady Irula	54–55%	61–65%
Walayar Irula	60%	70%
Muduga	55–57%	60%
Kurumba	55–56%	57–59%
Kada	62%	58–62%
Mala Malasa	61%	65%
Malasa	57–61%	68–74%
Eravalla	59–60%	70–74%

Table 6. Ranges of lexical similarity with Malayalam and Tamil

Table 6 shows that all the tribal varieties with Malayalam have a lexical similarity near the 60 percent threshold described by Blair. The issue of which varieties are different languages and which are not is difficult to answer with certainty. Overall, the lexical similarity of the tribal varieties is higher with Tamil than with Malayalam. All tribal varieties are at or above the 60 percent threshold with Tamil. The only variety which might be considered separate from Tamil is Kurumba. Walayar Irula, Malasa, and Eravalla have comparatively higher similarity with Tamil than the other varieties. Until intelligibility testing is carried out, it is difficult to say with certainty whether these varieties are dialects of Tamil or separate languages.

Irula wordlists

The lexical similarity chart shows that within the Attapady Irula varieties, the range of lexical similarity is 83 to 94 percent. The wordlist from Kolappady and the wordlist from Elachivazhi show lower similarity with the other Attapady varieties.

Adding in the Coimbatore Irula variety with Attapady Irula, the overall range of percentages does not change, giving indication that Attapady and Coimbatore Irula are similar varieties to one another.

The wordlist study also shows that the Irula variety spoken in Walayar shares relatively less similarity with Attapady and Coimbatore Irula varieties—74 to 79 percent similarity with Attapady varieties and 76 percent similarity with Coimbatore variety. Thus, it would be useful to do testing to measure the degree of intelligibility that exists between Walayar Irula and Attapady Irula.

The comparison study of Irula wordlist from Nilgiri Irula (or Melenadu Irula) and Attapady Irula shows that both are slightly distant varieties, sharing a range of 73 to 75 percent of lexical similarity with each other.

Muduga wordlists

The Muduga wordlists share 96 percent lexical similarity with each other. They share a range of 55 to 57 percent similarity with Malayalam and 60 percent similarity with Tamil. Compared to other tribal varieties in Palakkad, Muduga shows the most similarity with the neighbouring language varieties of Kurumba (82 to 83 percent) and Attapady Irula (74 to 77 percent).

Kurumba wordlists

The Kurumba wordlists share 84 percent lexical similarity with each other. They share a range of 56 to 57 percent similarity with Malayalam and 57 to 59 percent similarity with Tamil. Compared to all other varieties, Kurumba shares relatively high similarity with Muduga (82 to 83 percent). Kurumba varieties of Palakkad share a range of 49 to 51 percent similarity with the Alu Kurumba variety of Nilgiri, which leads to the conclusion that Palakkad Kurumba is a distinct language from Alu Kurumba.

Kada wordlists

The Kada wordlists share 85 percent lexical similarity with each other. These two wordlist sites are separated by deep jungle and there does not seem to be much contact between them. The Kada wordlists show 58 to 62 percent similarity with Tamil and 62 percent similarity with Malayalam. Among all the varieties in Palakkad, Kada stands as an entirely different language since almost all of its shared lexical similarity percentages are below the 60 percent threshold.

Mala Malasa wordlists

The Mala Malasa wordlist has 61 percent similarity with Malayalam and 65 percent with Tamil. The Mala Malasa wordlist shares a range of 67 to 75 percent similarity with all the other varieties of Palakkad.

Malasa/Malaya wordlists

The Malasa wordlists share 85 percent lexical similarity with each other. The Malasa wordlists have 57 to 61 percent similarity with Malayalam. Comparatively, the Malasa variety can be considered a separate speech form from Malayalam as it shares a low percentage of similarity with Malayalam (57 to 61 percent). The Malasa wordlists show more similarity with Tamil (68 to 74 percent), Walayar Irula (79 to 83 percent), and Eravalla (77 to 86 percent).

Eravalla wordlists

The Eravalla wordlists represent both Kerala and Tamil Nadu and share 91 percent lexical similarity with each other. The speech variety has more relatedness with Tamil as the wordlists share 70 to 74 percent similarity. The wordlists share 59 to 60 percent similarity with Malayalam, which is close to the border of being a separate language from Malayalam.

3.2 Intelligibility testing

Maggard (1998:14) has noted,

"The definition of a language and a dialect is not always clear. The two terms have been used in many different ways. Common usage often applies the term language to the large, prestigious languages, which have an established written literature. The term dialect is then used for all other speech varieties. Some linguists use language to refer to speech varieties that share similar vocabularies, phonological and/or grammatical systems. Many times, the sense in which the two terms are used can vary."

An important factor in determining the distinction between a language and a dialect is how well speech communities can understand one another. Low intelligibility between two speech varieties, even if one has been classified as a dialect of the other, impedes the ability of one group to understand the other (Gordon 2000:vii).

3.2.1 Procedures

Record Text Testing (RTT) is one tool that helps assess the degree to which speakers of related linguistic varieties understand one another. A three to five minute natural, personal-experience narrative is recorded on cassette from a mother tongue speaker of the speech variety in question. It is then evaluated with a group of mother tongue speakers from the same region by a procedure called Hometown Testing (HTT). This ensures that the story is representative of the speech variety in that area and is suitable to be used for testing in other sites.

Mother tongue speakers from other locations and differing speech varieties then listen to the recorded stories and are asked questions, interspersed in the story, to test their comprehension. Subjects are permitted to take tests of stories from other locations only if they perform well on a hometown test. This ensures that the test-taking procedure is understood.

Ten is considered the minimum number of subjects to be given this test, and subjects' responses to the story questions are noted down and scored. A person's score is considered a reflection of his comprehension of the text, and the average score of all subjects at a test point is indicative of the community's intelligibility of the speech variety of the story's origin. Included with the test point's average score is a calculation for the variation between individual subjects' scores, known as standard deviation, which helps in interpreting how representative those scores are.

After each story, subjects are asked questions such as how different they felt the speech was from their own and how much they could understand. These subjective post-RTT responses give an additional perspective for interpreting the objective test data. If a subject's answers to these questions are comparable with his or her score, it gives more certainty to the results. If, however, the post-RTT responses and test score show some dissimilarity, then this discrepancy can be investigated.

Refer to appendix C1 for a more complete description of Recorded Text Testing, as well as to Casad 1974. Information about the stories used in the RTT appears in appendix C2. In appendix C3, the demographic profiles of the subjects at each test site, the test scores, and the post-HTT/RTT responses are given.

3.2.2 RTT among Irular

Site selection

Since the relationship between Melenadu and Vettekad Irula was researched during the previous Irula survey, the researchers felt that it would be best to investigate the comprehension of speakers of Walayar Irula towards Attapady Irula. Walayar Irular is a minority group compared to Attapady Irular and there was little reason to test the Walayar variety in Attapady. Attapady Irula story was also used as a control test to evaluate comprehension and attitude of Coimbatore Irular towards the Attapady speech variety.

Table 7. Speech varieties tested using RTTs

Language/speech variety	Settlement	Taluk	District
Attapady Irula	Nakkupathy	Mannarkad	Palakkad
Walayar Irula	Nadupathy	Palakkad	Palakkad
Coimbatore Irula	Vilamarathoor	Mettupalyam	Coimbatore

Nakkupathy (Attapady Irula)

A story from Attapady Irula was recorded in Nakkupathy, a settlement of Mannarkad Taluk. Nakkupathy is one of the largest Irula settlements in Attapady and is not mixed with other local Malayali or Tamil settlements. Nakkupathy is also one of the primary settlements that have preserved the cultural and traditional values of Irular. This settlement also represents the geographical centre of the Attapady Irula variety and shares high lexical similarity with other Attapady Irula varieties.

Nadupathy (Walayar Irula)

A Walayar Irula story was recorded from the Nadupathy settlement. The settlement is two kilometres away from the Walayar main road and is situated inside the forest. This is the main settlement of Irular in this area and is an ideal location in representing the Walayar variety. Additionally, this village assisted the researchers in their first visit, allowing the researches to contact the people without any difficulty.

Vilamarathoor (Coimbatore Irula)

Vilamarathoor is an Irula settlement in the Coimbatore district. It represents a near central concentration of Irular settlements in this area. The previous survey team had selected the neighbouring village Nellithurai as a sample village to represent Vettekad Irula settlements in Tamil Nadu. Vilamarathoor was selected for gauging comprehension of the Coimbatore Irula people against Attapady Irula text from Nakkupathy. Another reason for selecting this site was to investigate the acceptability of the language used in the Nakkupathy story since it is spoken by a major portion of Irular.

Table 8. Results of Recorded Text Testing

Stories Played

Communities 7	Tested	Education Story (Attapady Irula)	Honey Story (Walayar Irula)
Nakkupathy (Attapady Irular)	Avg % SD N=	100 0 13	Not tested
Nadupathy (Walayar Irular)	Avg % SD N=	84 11.5 13	97 4.8 13
Vilamarathoor (Coimbatore Irular)	Avg % SD N=	94 5.6 11	Not tested

In interpreting RTT results, three pieces of information are necessary. The first is average percentage (shown as Avg %), which is the mean or average of all the participants' individual scores on a particular story at a particular test site. Also necessary is a measure of how much individuals' scores varied from the community average, called standard deviation (shown as SD). The third important piece of information is the size of the sample (shown as N=), depicting the number of people tested at each site. To be truly representative, a sample should include people from significant demographic categories, such as both men and women, young and old⁷, and educated and uneducated.⁸

Since the results of field-administered methods such as Recorded Text Testing cannot be completely isolated from potential biases, O'Leary (Ernest 1994) recommends that results from RTTs not be interpreted in terms of fixed numerical thresholds, but rather be evaluated in light of other indicators of intelligibility such as lexical similarity, dialect opinions, and reported patterns of contact and communication. In general, however, RTT mean scores of around 80% or higher with accompanying low standard deviations (usually ten and below; high standard deviations are about 15 and above) are usually taken to indicate that representatives of the test point dialect display adequate understanding of the variety represented by the recording. Conversely, RTT average scores below 60% are interpreted to indicate inadequate comprehension. The following section highlights the results of comprehension testing.

Test site – Nakkupathy

The test subjects of Nakkupathy scored 100 percent on their HTT on the "Education story," indicating that the story was fully understood and represents their speech variety. Post-HTT responses indicated that the language in the story is good, pure, and represents their area.

Test site – Nadupathy

Among the subjects in Nadupathy, the Walayar HTT (Honey story) averaged a score of 97 percent with a standard deviation of 4.8. The high average score with low standard deviation indicates that most people understood the story well. The subjects identified the language of the story as being the same as they speak in their village and said that the speech variety is good and free from mixing except for a few Malayalam words.

The Attapady Irula text from Nakkupathy tested among Walayar Irula subjects at Nadupathy averaged 84 percent, with a standard deviation of 11.5 (which is neither high nor low). Thus, most Nadupathy (Walayar Irula) subjects understood the Nakkupathy (Attapady Irula) story, but some had difficulty.

In response to the post-RTT questions, all subjects except one identified the Attapady text by either mentioning Vayal Bhasha or by giving the place name Attapady. Most subjects also reported that the speech variety was good and pure. All Walayar Irular subjects agreed that the speech form of Attapady Irular represented in the text differs some from how they pronounce it.

Seven out of the thirteen subjects reported that they understood the story fully, and three reported that they did not. Three subjects were not asked this question. Five subjects were asked about their contact with Attapady and reported that people from both areas occasionally visit each other's area.

Test site - Vilamarathoor

The Attapady Irula text from Nakkupathy tested among the Irular in Vilamarathoor averaged 94 percent, with a low standard deviation of 5.6. The test results indicate that the speech variety from Attapady was ⁷People from 16 to 35 years of age were considered as young and those above 35 were considered as old.

⁸People who have had no education were considered as uneducated and those who have primary education or above were considered as educated.

⁹This term is used to denote Irular in Attapady by Walayar Irular.

well understood by most subjects in Vilamarathoor. In addition, seven out of the eleven subjects said this story was not different from their language and each one said they understood the story fully.

Many subjects believed that the speech variety in the test tape was from Kerala. They said that the words or speech in the tape helped them to identify the variety. Four out of the eleven subjects said they didn't know where the story was from. Each subject also reported that the variety in the story was good and pure.

4 Bilingualism

Bilingualism is the ability to speak and understand a language other than one's mother tongue. A second language may be acquired either formally (in school) or informally through other types of contact with speakers of the language. Bilingual ability is not evenly distributed among a population. Second language ability varies on an individual basis and is closely related to demographic factors such as education, gender, age, and amount of travel. Blair (1990:51) points out, "It is important to avoid characterizing an entire community as though such ability were uniformly distributed. It is more accurate to describe how bilingualism is distributed throughout the community."

Malayalam is the medium of instruction in the schools in Kerala. ¹⁰ Mostly, tribals use their traditional language among themselves and speak Malayalam when they have to interact with people who cannot understand their tribal language. Many tribal groups reported that they could handle Malayalam. However, how extensively they can use Malayalam for speaking and understanding is a matter of investigation. The main tool used in this study to gauge bilingualism in Malayalam was a Sentence Repetition Test (SRT). A few questions regarding people's self-reported abilities in Malayalam were also asked. The researchers' observations in the field area also help evaluate the present picture of bilingualism among these groups.

4.1 Sentence Repetition Test (SRT)

The SRT is a tool designed to measure large-scale bilingual proficiency in a language. It consists of a series of eighteen recorded sentences in the language, composed of three practice sentences and fifteen test sentences. The SRT starts with short, simple sentences, and the sentences become progressively longer and more complex. Factors believed to influence the degree of bilingualism (most commonly age, gender, and level of education) are taken into account when selecting subjects. After individual subjects listen to each sentence, they repeat the sentence in the test language to the best of their ability. A subject's ability to accurately repeat fifteen sentences of increasing difficulty is directly correlated with the ability to speak and understand the language.

The test administrator notes deviations on a score sheet. Subjects' responses are recorded and rechecked later to ensure accurate scoring. The SRT results are expressed as a point total out of a possible 45 points (each sentence is 3 marks and 15 x 3=45). These scores are then interpreted according to a corresponding bilingual proficiency level, in this case RPE (Reported Proficiency Evaluation). The higher the score, the higher the bilingual proficiency. The RPE levels range from 0+ (very minimal proficiency) to 4+ (approaching the proficiency level of a native speaker). The ranges of scores corresponding to RPE levels for the Malayalam SRT are shown in table 9. It is generally believed that a minimum RPE level of 3+ (very good, general proficiency) or above is necessary for people to effectively understand and use materials in a language other than their mother tongue. This is referred to as adequate bilingualism in the rest of the report.

¹⁰Some schools use Tamil, where more Tamil settlers are found.

Malayalam SRT score (out of 45)	RPE level	Proficiency description
42 – 45	4+	Approaching native speaker proficiency
38 – 41	4	Excellent proficiency
34 – 37	3+	Very good, general proficiency
29 – 33	3	Good, general proficiency
25 – 28	2+	Good, basic proficiency
21 – 24	2	Adequate, basic proficiency
17 – 20	1+	Limited, basic proficiency
14 – 16	1	Minimal, limited proficiency
10 – 13	0+	Very minimal proficiency

Table 9. Score ranges on Malayalam SRT with corresponding RPE levels

Malayalam SRT was administered among Irular, Mudugar, Kurumbar, and Malasar. Attempts were made to select representative villages for SRT testing. Demographic factors of sex (male and female), age (young (15 to 35), middle (36 to 50), and old (above 50)) and education (uneducated (no class), primary (1–7th class), and higher (above 8th class)) were taken into account in the sampling for this study. In some cases, the sample was skewed mainly towards men compared with women, young compared with old, and educated compared with uneducated.

4.1.1 Comparison of SRT results

Subjects (num)	Average score	Equivalent RPE level	Num of subjects at RPE 3 and below
Mudugar (43)	27	2+	5 (12%)	38 (88%)
Malasar (35)	24	2	7 (20%)	28 (80%)
Irular (61)	24	2	6 (10%)	55 (90%)
Kurumbar (14)	16	1	-	14 (100%)

Table 10. Comparison of SRT results

Overall, the SRT results give an indication that none of these four tribal groups is adequately bilingual in Malayalam. No group received an average score equal to RPE level 3+ or above, the level considered to be adequately bilingual in a language. Among these groups Mudugar averaged highest in the Malayalam SRT. Kurumbar is the lowest bilingual group with an average score of 16 (RPE level 1; minimal, limited proficiency). The vast majority of the subjects tested from these four tribal groups scored below RPE level 3+ in Malayalam SRT.

4.1.2 SRT among Irular

In Kerala, Irular are in contact with both Malayalam speakers and Tamil speakers. Before the migration of Malayalam speakers to their land, the Irular depended on Tamil for outside communication. Today, Irular speak more in Malayalam than in Tamil, since Malayalam is the language of wider communication and is the medium of instruction in schools. Some people are literate in both Malayalam and Tamil.

According to the 1991 census, 30 percent of the Irula population in Kerala were recorded as literate (34 percent males and 26 percent females), meaning that 70 percent don't know how to read and write.

In this survey, Nakkupathy, one of the most central and traditional of Irula settlements in Kerala, was chosen to administer the SRT. It is located in the Agali panchayath of Attapady block. This village has easy access to the main road, school, and Malayalam speakers. Thus, Nakkupathy would represent the higher level of Malayalam bilingual proficiency among the Irular community. Therefore, it is believed that if the people of Nakkupathy are not adequately bilingual in Malayalam, the rest of the Irula community in Kerala are likely not adequately bilingual in Malayalam either. The sampling of the Irular subjects of Nakkupathy is summarised in table 11.

No formal Primary Higher Sex Age Total education educated educated Young 0 12 9 21 Middle 4 Male 6 1 11 Old 3 1 0 4 4 6 5 15 Young Middle 1 5 0 6 Female 0 Old 4 0 4 26 15 Total 20 61

Table 11. Sampling of SRT subjects among Irular

Results and analysis

The overall results of the SRT conducted among Irular in Nakkuppathy are shown in table 12 and the results based on sex, age, and education are shown in table 13.

The "Average score" is expressed in points, out of a total of 45 points possible on the SRT.

Num of Subjects	Average score	Equivalent RPE level	Num of subjects at RPE 3+ and above	Num of subjects at RPE 3 and below
61	24	2.	6 (10%)	55 (90%)

Table 12. Overall SRT results among Irular

The overall average SRT score for Nakkupathy subjects is 24, which is equivalent to an RPE level of 2 (adequate, basic proficiency). Of these sixty-one subjects, only 10 percent scored an RPE level of 3+ or above in Malayalam. The remaining 90 percent scored below RPE 3+. Since Nakkupathy is thought to represent a higher level of bilingual ability in Malayalam among the Irular community, the results indicate that overall, the vast majority of the Irular community are not adequately bilingual in Malayalam.

Table 13. SRT results in Nakkupathy based on sex, age, and education

Subjects (num)	Average score	Equivalent RPE level	Num of subjects at RPE 3+ and above	Num of subjects at RPE 3 and below
Male (36)	25	2+	5 (14%)	31 (86%)
Female (25)	22	2	1 (4%)	24 (96%)
Younger (36)	27	2+	6 (17%)	30 (83%)
Middle (17)	22	2	-	17 (100%)
Older (8)	12	0+	-	8 (100%)
Higher Education (15)	29	3	3 (20%)	12 (80%)
Primary Education (26)	26	2+	3 (11%)	23 (89%)
Uneducated (20)	17	1+	-	20 (100%)

Sex, age, and education all show some influence on Malayalam bilingualism levels among Irula subjects; overall, higher levels of bilingual ability were generally found among men, younger, and educated subjects. No one in the middle or older age categories nor the uneducated category scored at RPE level of 3+ and above. Out of twenty-five female subjects tested, only one scored at RPE 3+. Even though two-thirds of the Nakkupathy SRT subjects are educated, only 17 percent of them scored at an equivalent of RPE 3+ and above.

4.1.3 SRT among Mudugar

Because it was difficult to get adequate subjects from one site, subjects from three neighbouring settlements in the Mudugar communities were tested. These sites were considered representative of Muduga settlements in Attapady. The sampling of the subjects is summarised in table 14.

Sex	Age	No formal education	Primary educated	Higher educated	Total
	Young	3	8	8	19
Male	Middle	-	3	1	4
	Old	1	-	-	1

Table 15. Overall SRT results of Mudugar

Num of Subjects	Average score	Equivalent RPE level	Num of subjects at RPE 3+ and above	Num of subjects at RPE 3 and below
43	27	2+	5 (12%)	38 (88%)

Table 15 shows that the average score of the forty-three subjects is 27, which is equivalent to an RPE level of 2+ (good, basic proficiency). Of these forty-three subjects, just five scored the equivalent of RPE level of 3+ or above in Malayalam. The remaining subjects (88 percent) scored the equivalent of RPE 3 and below. The overall results of SRT among Mudugar show that most of the people are not adequately bilingual in Malayalam.

Table 16. SRT results of Mudugar subjects based on sex, age, and education

Subjects (num)	Average score	Equivalent RPE level	Num of subjects at RPE 3+ and above	Num of subjects at RPE 3 and below
Male (24)	27	2+	2 (8%)	22 (92%)
Female (19)	28	2+	3 (16%)	16 (84%)
Younger (33)	28	2+	5 (15%)	28 (85%)
Middle (9)	25	2+	-	9 (100%)
Older (1)	10	0+	-	1 (100%)
Higher Edu (20)	30	3	5 (25%)	15 (75%)

Primary Edu (16)	26	2+	-	16 (100%)
Uneducated (7)	22	2	-	7 (100%)

No difference was noticed in the performance of men and women. Out of the thirty-six subjects who were educated, only five (all of whom were secondary educated) scored a high enough level to be considered adequately bilingual in Malayalam. Education plays a major role in determining the level of bilingualism. Since the majority of the Mudugar community is still uneducated, and most of the educated subjects scored low on the Malayalam SRT, it can be concluded that much of the Mudugar community is not adequately bilingual in Malayalam.

4.1.4 SRT among Kurumbar

Thadikundu is one of the two nearest villages to the border, but the border is still a two hour walk through the forest from the village. There is little access to the main road, schools, and Malayalam speakers. Most of the people in this village are uneducated. Many children of school age are not going to school. For this community, contact with outsiders is the main way to learn Malayalam.

Only fourteen subjects were tested with Malayalam SRT due to several reasons. Most people were reluctant towards taking the test, possibly due to a lack of interaction with people from the outside. There were a number of people, including young men, who did not want to take the test because they feared that they could not repeat the sentences.

Sex	Age	No formal education	Primary educated	Higher educated	Total

Table 18 shows that the average score of the fourteen subjects is 16, which is equivalent to RPE level 1 (minimal, limited proficiency). No subjects performed at RPE 3+ or above. It is clear that the subjects who participated in the SRT did not perform to a level to which they may be considered adequately bilingual in Malayalam.

Overall, men scored higher than women, educated scored higher than uneducated, and young scored higher than old on the Malayalam SRT among the Kurumbar. The group that had the highest SRT score was the higher educated.

4.1.5 SRT among Malasar

The Malayalam SRT was administered to the Malasar people at a Government Orange Farm in Nelliyampathy. Thirty-five subjects participated in the test, shown in table 20.

Table 21. Overall SRT results among Malasar

Subjects (num)	Average score	-	Num of subjects at RPE 3+ and above	3
35	24	2	7 (20%)	28 (80%)

The average score of the thirty-five subjects was 24, which is equivalent to RPE level 2 (adequate, basic proficiency). Of subjects tested, 20 percent scored an RPE level of 3+ or above in Malayalam and the remaining 80 percent scored at RPE level 3 and below.

Table 22. SRT results among Malasar based on sex, age, and education

Table 22 shows that the scoring of subjects varied considerably depending on their education. Secondary educated subjects (all were young) averaged 35 (RPE level 3+), the highest score of any subgroup. The uneducated subjects scored an average of 21 (RPE level 2). Primary educated subjects scored an average of 30 (RPE level 3).

4.2 Self-reported bilingualism in Malayalam

A few questions regarding the tribals' bilingual abilities were included in the Language Use, Attitudes, and Vitality Questionnaire (shown in appendix E). Questionnaire responses were collected from all seven people groups covered in this survey. Details of each site and demographic profiles can be seen in the next chapter, titled Language use, attitudes, and vitality. Questions were asked in Malayalam with mother tongue translation used for communication with subjects who had limited Malayalam ability.

Responses to this question show that all tribal groups are reported to speak an LWC. Generally, these communities speak Malayalam or Tamil other than their mother tongue. Some communities said they speak their neighbouring tribal varieties.

^bBaduga and Kannada

Generally, many subjects from Irular (Kerala), Mala Malasar, and Kadar felt that they could speak both Malayalam and Tamil. The responses of Mudugar and Kurumbar show these communities have more speakers in Malayalam than Tamil. All the respondents of Irular (Tamil Nadu) and Malasar reported that they can speak Tamil.

Among all the communities, Kurumbar have the greatest number of monolinguals with 17 percent of Kurumbar subjects saying they know only their language. Another 13 percent of Kurumbar reported that in addition to their mother tongue they could speak only Muduga, their neighbouring tribal language.

Qn.2.a, "Can you read and write?"

Tamil	-	20%	11%	22%	84%	70%	60%	-
Both	-	-	22%	22%	-	-	10%-	-

The overall responses to these questions show that the subjects who have had any formal education stated they can read and write. Mostly, the literacy language of Irular (Kerala), Mudugar, Kurumbar, and Kadar is Malayalam. Among Irular (Tamil Nadu), Malasar, and Eravallar the literacy language is Tamil.

Qn.3. "Which language do you understand better, Malayalam or Tamil?"

Answers	Mudugar (n=30)	Kadar (n=11)	Kurumbar (n=21)	Irular (TN) (n=16)	Malasar (n=34)	Eravallar (n=46)	Irular (n = 56)	M. Malasar (n=10)

Tamil	3%	9%	19%	88%	88%	87%	46%	-
Both	6%	-	19%	-	6%	6%	25%	60%

This question was asked due to the availability of both Malayalam and Tamil resources. The response indicates that most Mudugar, Kadar, and Kurumbar subjects understand Malayalam better than Tamil. Irular (both states), Malasar, and Eravallar subjects said they understand Tamil better than Malayalam. Out of ten Mala Malasar subjects, six were not able decide which language they understand better.

Answers	Malasar (n=34)	Eravallar (n=46)	Mudugar (n=30)	Irular (TN) (n = 35)	Irular (n=56)	Kurumbar (n=21)	Kadar (n=11)	M. Malasar (n=10)

No	-	4%	-	-	-	10%	27%	-

Qn.4. "Do you fully understand the language Malayalam/Tamil spoken by government officials or that you hear on the radio?"

Most of the subjects from these communities (except Mala Malasar and Kadar) felt that they are able to comprehend government officials and radio programmes in their LWC. Eight out of ten Mala Malasar and five out of eleven Kadar reported that they are not able to fully understand conversations in Malayalam. Within each tribal group, some subjects felt that they are not able to fully understand conversations in an LWC.

5 Language use, attitudes, and vitality

A study of language use patterns attempts to describe which languages or speech varieties members of a community use in different social situations. These situations, called "domains," are contexts in which the use of one language variety is considered more appropriate than another (Fasold 1984:183).

A study of language attitudes generally attempts to describe people's feelings and preferences towards their own language and other speech varieties around them and what value they place on those languages. Ultimately, these views, whether explicit or unexpressed, will influence the results of efforts towards literacy and the acceptability of literature development.

Language vitality is another key concept in sociolinguistic research. It refers to the prospects of a language to continue to be spoken by mother tongue speakers and passed on to future generations. Language maintenance is where members of the community have chosen to continue using the language traditionally used. The replacement of a mother tongue with a second language can be referred to as language shift. Many variables have been said to contribute to vitality, such as social status of the language, the number of speakers, and whether or not it has a writing system.

5.1 Procedures

Orally administered questionnaires were the primary method for assessing patterns of language use, attitudes, and vitality in this survey. In addition to these questionnaires, observations and informal interviews were also done. The questionnaires were asked in Malayalam (Kerala), Tamil (Tamil Nadu), and the subject's mother tongue. Questionnaire responses were collected from twenty-two sites (listed in table 23) between all seven tribal groups investigated in this survey. The Language Use, Attitudes and Vitality (LUAV) Questionnaire can be found in appendix E. Among some of the groups, the percentage of questionnaire respondents was about 1 percent of the total population. The following codes and abbreviations are used in this chapter: MT means "mother tongue," LWC means "language of wider communication" (usually Malayalam), LWCs means "Malayalam and Tamil," and Both (when used in tables) means "mother tongue and Malayalam."

5.2 Sampling distribution for questionnaire subjects

The language use patterns of Attapady tribes (Irular, ¹¹ Mudugar, and Kurumbar) and Chittoor tribes ¹² (Malasar, Eravallar, Kadar, and Mala Malasar) were analysed separately. Researchers were also interested to compare the language use and attitude pattern exhibited by Irular in Kerala and Irular in Tamil Nadu. In order to make appropriate conclusions about each community, attempts were made to collect responses from a sample of people who represent various demographic characteristics of the community. It was assumed that gender, age, and education were relevant factors influencing language use and attitudes. The sample was divided into the following categories: uneducated (no schooling) and educated (1st class or above), young (16 to 35) and old (above 35), and male and female. Sometimes it was not possible to get a good sample from a site as women were generally reluctant to participate in the study. Figure 5.2 gives the sampling of questionnaire subjects for the group studied.

¹¹Though some Irular is from Walayar (Chittoor taluk), both Irular from Attapady and Chittoor are covered with Attapady tribes.

¹²Chittoor covers two sites (one Malasar and one Eravallar) from Tamil Nadu near the Kerala border.

5.3 Language use

A number of questions were included in the Language Use, Attitudes, and Vitality (LUAV) Questionnaire to observe patterns of which language(s) members of a community use in different social situations.

5.3.1 Attapady tribes

The results of the language use questionnaire from Irular (Kerala and Tamil Nadu), Mudugar, and Kurumbar are summarised in the following tables.

^aA total of 30 Kurumbar subjects participated in the questionnaire. However, some subjects didn't respond to certain questions and some were not asked certain questions. The figures in the table represent the people who answered each question.

From the results shown in the above tables, the subjects from Irular (both Kerala and Tamil Nadu), Mudugar, and Kurumbar mostly prefer to use their mother tongue in the home/family, village, and religious domains. In each group, at least 90 percent of the subjects reported speaking their mother tongue with their parents, children, and village friends. With outsiders such as government officials, subjects mostly use the language of wider communication, Malayalam, or Tamil in the case of Irular living in Tamil Nadu. Some subjects reported using Tamil where the area represents more Tamil speakers. Noticeably, 10 percent of Irular subjects and 25 percent of Kurumbar subjects reported they use their mother tongue while they converse with the doctor (who can speak Tamil and Malayalam). For the most part it appears that mother tongue is the language choice of Attapady tribes except for situations where they interact with outsiders.

Questionnaire results of Irular from Tamil Nadu also show that subjects prefer their mother tongue in home/family, village, and religious domains. Subjects choose Tamil in situations where they have to communicate with outsiders. Generally, Irula people from both Kerala and Tamil Nadu have a strong preference for vernacular language use in traditional domains and depend on the respective state language when they communicate with outsiders.

5.3.2 Chittoor tribes

The results of the language use questionnaire from Malasar, Eravallar, Kadar and Mala Malasar are summarised in the following tables.

Qn	Domains	MT	MT/Tamil	Tamil	LWCs	Malayalam	Both
5a	With parents	32 (94%)	2 (6%)

Table 29. Domains of Malasar language use

Questionnaire results among the thirty-four Malasar subjects indicate that they speak mostly their mother tongue within their community. With village friends, the number of people reported to speak their mother tongue is less (74 percent) than with parents and with children. With outsiders and the special occasion to speak with a doctor, the subjects mostly speak Tamil, the group's second language. In private prayer at least two thirds reported using their own language. In short, Malasar subjects prefer to use their mother tongue in the domains of home and village and depend on Tamil to communicate with people from outside.

Qn	Domains	MT	MT/Tamil	Tamil	LWCs	Malayalam
5a	With parents	15 (31%)	8 (17%)	24 (50%)	1 (2%)

Table 30. Domains of Eravallar language use

Looking at the Eravallar questionnaire responses, it appears that the majority of Eravallar subjects are not using their mother tongue presently, even in the traditional domains of the family and village. Less than half of the forty-eight subjects reported to speak the vernacular with parents (17 percent say they use both the mother tongue and Tamil), with half saying they speak only Tamil with their parents. Only 10 percent of the subjects stated they use their mother tongue when they speak with their children (and about the same percentage with village friends). With outsiders, almost all subjects speak Tamil, since in this area Tamil is the LWC. In the religious domain, while 21 percent reported using mother tongue, the majority prefer Tamil. Generally, the results indicate that language shift is in progress towards Tamil from Eravallar.

Qn	Domains	MT	LWC	Both	LWCs	NA/Not asked
5a	With parents	11 (100%)

Table 31. Domains of Kadar language use

Among the eleven Kadar subjects, there is a difference in reported preference between the language used with parents and the language used while speaking with children. All subjects reported speaking their mother tongue with parents, but with children three of the eleven prefer to use their mother tongue along with an LWC. In the religious domain about half of the subjects reported using their mother tongue. Overall, some signs of language shift are seen among the Kadar community, though the small number of questionnaire responses makes this difficult to state with certainty.

Qn	Domains	MT	Both	Malayalam/Tamil
5a	With parents	10 (100%)

5f	Private prayer	9 (90%)		1 (10%)

Table 32. Domains of Mala Malasar language use

The questionnaire responses from ten Mala Malasar subjects in one village show that mother tongue is their only choice in their home and village domains. For private prayer, all subjects except one reported using their mother tongue. Interestingly, seven of ten subjects reported that they speak their mother tongue to outsiders. The results show that most Mala Malasar subjects (though admittedly a small sample) choose to speak their mother tongue both within and outside their community.

5.4 Language attitudes

A few questions were included in the LUAV questionnaire to understand people's feelings and preferences towards their own language compared with the LWC, towards literacy, and towards the acceptability of literature development in the vernacular. In this section, all groups will be discussed together.

5.4.1 Attitude towards mother tongue compared with LWC

Qn.6. What is your favourite language?

Group (num of responses)	МТ	Malayalam	Tamil	MT/LWC	Other responses
Irular Tamil Nadu (35)	57%	3%	17%	23%	-
Irular (58)	76%	16%	7%	1	1%
Kurumbar (29)	80%	13%	3%	1	4%
Malasar (34)	68%	3%	26%	3%	-
Mala Malasar (10)	80%	-	-	20%	-
Mudugar (30)	60%	33%	-	4%	3%
Eravallar (48)	15%	2%	77%	6%	-
Kadar (11)	45%	55%	-	-	-

The responses to this question show that the majority of Kadar and Eravallar subjects are more favourable towards their second language than their mother tongue. Six of the eleven Kadar subjects said that Malayalam is their favourite language and about three-quarters of Eravallar subjects consider Tamil as their favourite language. The highest percentage of subjects who considered their mother tongue as the favourite language were from the Kurumbar and Mala Malasar communities.

Qn.8. What is the favourite language for the young people in your village?

Group (num of responses)	MT	Malayalam	Tamil	Both	Other Responses ^a
Irular Tamil Nadu (35)	74%	6%	17%	-	3%
Irular (58)	47%	31%	9%	12%	1%
Kurumbar (28)	57%	21%	-	7%	14%

Mala Malasar (10)	10%	70%	-	-	20%
Mudugar (30)	53%	30%	-	7%	10%
Eravallar (46)	9%	4%	85%	2%	-
Kadar (11)	27%	73%	-	-	-

^aDon't know/Indifferent/No response

Compared to the responses for subjects' own favourite language, among each group (except Irular from Tamil Nadu), a lower percentage of subjects felt that the young people's favourite language was the mother tongue. The biggest difference is seen in Mala Malasar—80 percent of subjects felt that their favourite language was their own language, but only 10 percent of these same ten subjects felt that the mother tongue was the young people's favourite language. Among Eravallar and Kadar, most of the respondents believed that their young people's favourite language was the LWC.

Qn.7. Do you feel that your MT is as good as Malayalam/Tamil?

Group (num of responses)	Yes	No	Other responses ^a
Irular Tamil Nadu (35)	94%	6%	-
Irular (58)	95%	3%	2%
Kurumbar (28)	82%	4%	14%

Mudugar (30)	97%	3%	-
Eravallar (33)	58%	39%	3%
Kadar (11)	45%	55%	-

^aDon't know/Indifferent/No response

Over 80 percent of subjects from each group (except Kadar and Eravallar) consider that their mother tongue is as good as the LWC. Among Kadar, 55 percent of the subjects replied that their mother tongue is not as good as Malayalam. Among Eravallar, 39 percent of the respondents think that their language is not as good as Tamil.

Qn.9. What language should be used by a mother in your village when she speaks with her little child?

Group (num of responses)	МТ	Malayalam	Tamil	Both	Other responses ^a
Irular Tamil Nadu (35)	91%	-	9%	1	-
Irular (56)	75%	16%	4%	2%	3%

Mala Malasar (10)	100%	-	1	1	-
Mudugar (30)	77%	20%	1	3%	-
Eravallar (44)	8%	-	89%	2%	-
Kadar (11)	36%	36%	-	9%	18%

^aIndifferent/No response

Except among Eravallar and Kadar, the majority of subjects from the remaining groups stated that mothers in the community should use their mother tongue with their children. Among Eravallar only 8 percent of subjects reported that their language should be used by mothers with their children with 89 percent stating that Tamil should be used. Among Kadar, only about one-third of the subjects would like to see their language being used by mothers in their village when speaking with their children. Another 36 percent stated that mothers should use Malayalam.

Qn.10. Would you be happy if your child spoke only Malayalam/Tamil in the home?

Group (num of responses)	Yes	No	Other responses ^a
Irular Tamil Nadu (35)	69%	31%	-
Irular (57)	51%	44%	5%
Kurumbar (28)	69%	23%	8%
Malasar (31)	48%	36%	16%
Mala Malasar (10)	100%	-	-
Mudugar (30)	57%	40%	3%
Eravallar (29)	90%	10%	-
Kadar (11)	82%	9%	9%

^aIndifferent/No response

Somewhat surprisingly, the majority of subjects from every group (except Malasar—48 percent) stated that they would be happy if their children spoke only a second language in the home. The highest percentage of favourable responses was among the Mala Malasar, Eravallar, and Kadar subjects.

5.4.2 Perspectives on pure variety

A few questions were included in the language attitude questionnaire to find out the accepted speech variety in each tribal language spoken in the area. The question asked was, "In which settlement is your language spoken most purely?" However, this question was not very applicable to Kadar, Mala Malasar, and Eravallar, since the populations of Kadar and Mala Malasar are small and no dialect variation is expected and since language shift is taking place in the Eravalla language. A brief discussion about perceptions within Irular, Kurumbar, Mudugar, and Malasar is summarised below.

Generally, answers like "our area speaks best" or "all areas speak the same" were reported by many of the Irula subjects and give a vague impression that they are not identifying any language variation within Irula. From Kurumbar, many subjects reported that Thudukki, one of the major settlements of Kurumbar. is the place where pure Kurumba is spoken. "No difference in Muduga" was the major response reported by Mudugar. Most Malasar subjects reported "our area" or "nearby areas" speak pure language, which would indicate that they are unaware of any dialect variation within the Malasa language.

The subjects were also asked "Why do you say that it is pure?" "It is good language," "it is a more isolated area" or "it has higher population" were the common answers to this question.

5.4.3 Attitude towards literature development

Qn.18 Would you like the government producing books in your own language?

The response to this question among the Eravallar community contradicted other responses as many Eravallar subjects said they would like to have materials in their language. However, there are probably other motivations other than the true desire to have materials in their language. Generally, all other groups reported that they prefer to have material in their language. About half of the Kadar subjects reported they don't want the government to produce books in their language, which matches with the rest of the questionnaire responses.

5.4.4 Attitude towards mother tongue literacy

One question was asked to understand the perspective towards mother tongue literacy. To illiterate people, the question asked was "Would you attend the MT literacy class in your village?" and to literate people, "Would you help if there is a MT literacy class in your village?" The expected response to this question was either "yes" or "no." Except for Eravallar and Kadar subjects, the response was favourable towards mother tongue literacy. All illiterate subjects from Irular, Kurumbar, Mudugar, Malasar, and Mala Malasar said they would attend the literacy class being conducted in their mother tongue. Among Eravallar, eighteen subjects showed interest in attending literacy class while seven subjects didn't prefer a literacy class. Among Kadar, four subjects were interested in mother tongue literacy while four were not.

A few literate subjects (mainly from Irular, Mudugar, Kurumbar, and Malasar) were asked the question about their willingness to assist with a literacy class, and all of them said they are ready to help.

5.5 Language vitality

Five questions were included in the LUAV questionnaire to assess the future of the tribal varieties spoken in this area.

Qn.17. Do you think that, when your children have grown up, they will speak your language?

Irular (both states), Kurumbar, Mala Malasar, Malasar, and Mudugar: The questionnaire results of all of these groups indicate that this language will be spoken in the foreseeable future. The children start to speak their traditional language first and only start to acquire second language skill in either Malayalam or Tamil around five years old, when they start school or later. In each group, over 90 percent of the subjects reported that their young people know their mother tongue just as well as the old people do.

The majority of the subjects from Irular from Tamil Nadu, Kurumbar, and Mala Malasar resist the idea of marriage with outsiders, while Irular from Kerala, Malasar, and Mudugar generally stated they do not object.

The majority of the subjects from these tribal groups seem confident that their younger generation will continue to speak their language. Some subjects expressed doubt whether their language will continue or said they are not able to predict the future of their language. A small percentage of subjects from most groups stated that their mother tongue will not be spoken by their children when they have grown up.

Kadar: The vitality of the mother tongue seems questionable for the Kadar community. Three out of the eleven Kadar subjects said the children speak Malayalam first. In response to the question about how old children are when they start to speak Malayalam, responses varied from seven years old to the beginning of school onwards. One quarter of Kadar subjects reported that the young people in their community don't know their language as well as the old people. About half of the subjects believe their children will continue to speak their language, 37 percent are not quite sure whether their language will continue, and 18 percent feel that Kadar children will not speak the vernacular when they grow up.

Eravallar: The questionnaire response from Eravallar shows that language shift has already begun as the majority of the subjects stated that their children learn to speak Tamil first. Most Eravallar subjects are sure that their children will not speak their language. In addition, many Eravallar subjects (68 percent) expressed their opinion that young people do not know their language as well as the old people. The question "How old are your children when they start to speak Malayalam or Tamil?" was not asked to many Eravallar subjects since they reported that they use the LWC with their children.

6 Summary and conclusions

This sociolinguistic survey was conducted among Eravallar, Irular, Kadar, Kurumbar, Mala Malasar, Malasar, and Mudugar tribes of the Palakkad district of Kerala. Different tools and methods were used to achieve the goals of the survey. The findings of these studies are summarised in the following sections.

6.1 Lexical study

Wordlist comparison study helped to distinguish whether the groups covered in this survey were using their own traditional speech variety, Malayalam, or Tamil as their mother tongue. According to the criteria used on this survey project, two speech varieties can be considered as separate languages if they share less than 60 percent lexical similarity with each other. Many of the tribal varieties in Palakkad have a lexical similarity near the 60 percent threshold with the languages of wider communication (LWC), Malayalam and Tamil, with an overall higher similarity with Tamil than with Malayalam. Among all the groups, Walayar Irular, Malasar, and Eravallar have comparatively higher similarity with Tamil.

Lexical similarity percentages within each tribal speech variety show no major variation, except for Irula. Attapady Irula and Coimbatore Irula varieties have a comparatively high lexical similarity with one another and can be considered closely related varieties. The Irula variety spoken in Walayar shares relatively less similarity with Attapady and Coimbatore Irula varieties. Comparing the wordlist from Nilgiri Irula (or Melenadu Irula) and Attapady Irula shows that both are slightly distant varieties.

6.2 Intelligibility study

Comprehension testing was carried out among the Walayar Irular using a story from Attapady Irular, with an average score of 84 percent. Although some Walayar Irular subjects found some difficulty in understanding the Attapady text, most said they understood the story fully. Thus, the conclusion can be made that the Walayar Irular can basically understand the story representing the Attapady variety. Furthermore, most subjects felt that the Attapady variety was good and pure.

The Attapady Irula story also was used to evaluate the comprehension and attitude of Coimbatore Irular people toward Attapady speech variety. The test results from Vilamarathoor indicate that the test subjects can understand the Attapady speech variety as they averaged high on the test (94 percent). In addition, most subjects said this story was not different from their language and every one said they understood the story fully. Each subject also reported that the variety in the story was good and pure.

6.3 Bilingualism study

A Sentence Repetition Test in Malayalam was conducted among Irular, Mudugar, Kurumbar, and Malasar communities. The vast majority of the subjects tested from these four tribal groups scored below RPE level 3+, the level considered to be adequately bilingual in a language. Among these groups, Mudugar averaged highest in the Malayalam SRT with an average score of 27 (equivalent to RPE level 2+; good, basic proficiency). Kurumbar was the lowest bilingual group with an average score of 16 (equivalent to RPE level 1; minimal, limited proficiency). Though it is not possible to state with certainty the bilingual proficiencies among these four tribal groups, it is clear there would be portions (especially the uneducated) whose ability in understanding and utilising materials in Malayalam is limited.

The self-reported questionnaire responses show that all tribal groups are reported to speak their respective LWC. Subjects who have any formal education stated they can read and write. Mudugar, Kurumbar, Kadar, and Mala Malasar communities understand Malayalam better than Tamil whereas Irular, Malasar, and Eravallar understand Tamil better than Malayalam. Within Kadar and Mala Malasar many subjects felt that they could not understand Malayalam. Most subjects from all of these communities felt they are able to comprehend the government officials and radio programmes in their LWC.

It is clear from observation that each tribal group's ability in an LWC is directly related to their education and contact with particular language speakers. Many people's second language ability is limited to handle basic tasks. Kurumbar and Mala Malasar are least bilingual in Malayalam mostly because of their illiteracy and isolation. The Kadar community is promoting the use of Malayalam and this motivation helps many of them become bilingual in Malayalam in addition to receiving education.

6.4 Language use, attitude, and vitality studies

6.4.1 Language use

Questionnaire results of Irular in both Kerala and Tamil Nadu show that most subjects strongly prefer to use their mother tongue in the home/family, village and religious domains, and depend on the respective state language when they communicate with outsiders.

Most Mudugar, Kurumbar, Malasar, and Mala Malasar subjects also prefer to use their mother tongue in the home/family, village, and religious domains. With outsiders and government officials, subjects reported speaking in a language of wider communication.

Generally, Kadar questionnaire respondents choose to use their vernacular in their home, village, and religious domains. Some signs of language shift are seen in Kada, since Malayalam is starting to be used by some with the children and village domains. They largely depend on Malayalam when they communicate with people from outside.

Language shift is more pronounced among the Eravallar community. Many Eravallar subjects reported to speak Tamil rather than their mother tongue in different domains. Three-quarters of the questionnaire subjects said they speak Tamil with their children and half reported speaking Tamil with their parents.

6.4.2 Language attitude

In general, many from Irular (both states), Kurumbar, Mudugar, and Malasar are positive toward their mother tongue and positive toward the LWC. The majority from all four groups considered their mother tongue as their favourite language and also felt their mother tongue was as good as the LWC. Responses about the young people's favourite language were less favourable, but in each group about half to three-quarters of the subjects thought that young people favoured their mother tongue. Though the majority of subjects in these communities would find delight that their younger generation speaks only the LWC, they also state that mothers in their community should use the vernacular with their children.

Responses from Mala Malasar subjects generally were similar to those from Irular, Kurumbar, Mudugar, and Malasar. The main differences were in the higher percentage of subjects who felt the younger generation's favourite language was the LWC, and a higher percentage of subjects who would be happy if children speak only Malayalam in the home.

In regard to language attitudes, the overall questionnaire responses show that Kadar and Eravallar are not very positive towards their mother tongue. The majority of the subjects from both groups consider the LWC as their favourite language. Likewise, the majority of subjects reported that their young people's favourite language is the LWC rather than the mother tongue. Around half of the questionnaire respondents had the opinion that their mother tongue is not as good as the LWC. Lastly, 36 percent of Kadar and 8 percent of Eravallar subjects stated that mothers in their community should use Malayalam (Kadar subjects) and Tamil (Eravallar subjects) with their children.

6.4.3 Language vitality

Irular (both states), Mudugar, Kurumbar, Malasar, and Mala Malasar: In all of these groups there are a number of indications that the mother tongue will be spoken in the foreseeable future. The children start to speak their traditional language first. Almost all subjects in every group reported that their young people know their mother tongue just as well as the old people. The majority of subjects from these five tribal groups seem confident that the younger generation will continue to speak their language.

Kadar: The vitality of mother tongue seems questionable for the Kadar community. Some Kadar subjects said the children speak Malayalam first or at an early age, and some said that the young people in their community don't know their language as well as the old people. About half of the subjects believed their children will continue to speak their language, about 20 percent felt that they will not, and the rest were not quite sure whether the children will speak the vernacular when they grow up.

Eravallar: It is evident that language shift has already begun among the Eravallar community. The majority of the subjects who were questioned stated that their children learn to speak Tamil first. Many Eravallar subjects expressed their opinion that young people do not know their language as well as the old people. Furthermore, most Eravallar subjects felt sure that their children will not speak their language.

Appendix B: Wordlists

Appendix B1

Lexical similarity counting procedures¹³

A standardised list of 210 vocabulary items was collected from speakers at key locations for each of the language varieties studied in this survey. In standard procedure, the 210 words are elicited from a person who has grown up in the target locality. Ideally, the list is then collected a second time from another speaker at the same site. Any differences in responses are examined in order to identify (1) inaccurate responses due to misunderstanding of the elicitation cue, (2) loan words offered in response to the language of elicitation when indigenous terms are actually still in use, and (3) terms which are at different places along the generic-specific lexical scale. Normally, a single term is recorded for each item of the wordlist. However, more than one term is recorded for a single item when more than one specific term occupies the semantic area of a more generic item on the wordlist.

The wordlists are compared to determine the extent to which the vocabulary of each pair of speech forms is similar. No attempt is made to identify genuine cognates based on a network of sound correspondences. Rather, two items are judged to be phonetically similar if at least half of the segments compared are the same (category 1), and of the remaining segments at least half are rather similar (category 2). For example, if two items of eight segments in length are compared, these words are judged to be similar if at least four segments are virtually the same and at least two more are rather similar. The criteria applied are as follows:

Category 1

- a. Contoid (consonant-like) segments which match exactly
- b. Vocoid (vowel-like) segments which match exactly or differ by only one articulatory feature
- c. Phonetically similar segments (of the sort which frequently are found as allophones) which are seen to correspond in at least three pairs of words

Category 2

- a. All other phonetically similar non-vocalic pairs of segments which are not supported by at least three pairs of words
- b. Vowels which differ by two or more articulatory features

Category 3

- a. Pairs of segments which are not phonetically similar
- b. A segment which is matched by no segment in the corresponding item and position

Blair (1990:32) writes, "In contextualizing these rules to specific surveys in South Asia, the following differences between two items are ignored: (a) interconsonantal [ə], (b) word initial, word final, or intervocalic [h, fi], (c) any deletion which is shown to be the result of a regularly occurring process in a specific environment."

¹³This description of lexical similarity counting procedures is partially adapted from that found in appendix A of O'Leary 1992.

The following table summarises lower threshold limits for considering words as phonetically similar with a specified length (number of segments or phones):

Word length	Category One	Category Two	Category Three
2	2	0	0
3	2	1	0
4	2	1	1
5	3	1	1
6	3	2	1
7	4	2	1
8	4	2	2
9	5	2	2
10	5	3	2
11	6	3	2
12	6	3	3

Modifications to lexical similarity grouping procedures

Modifications to the lexical similarity grouping procedures summarised above were applied to the wordlists compared in this study. These modifications are listed below.

- 1. Root-based groupings: For many items (found in glosses # 3, 13, 14, 21, 27, 32, 33, 42, 44, 50, 53, 55, 57, 58, 65, 67, 71, 74, 77, 78, 80, 98, 100, 102, 103, 106, 110, 112, 115, 118, 119, 120, 121, 123, 123, 129, 131–140, 143–147, 166–167, 170, 175, 177, 178, 181, 183, 184, 186, 188, 189, 191–195, 197–200, 202–204, 207, 209) words were grouped based on what appeared to be a common root morpheme, rather than words as a whole. This was especially true for verbs. In some cases, generic terms appear to have been given, while in other cases, more specific terms have been given.
- 2. Loose consonantal and vowel groupings: The field workers eliciting the words may hear and transcribe the sounds slightly differently, and probably with increasing ability to distinguish similar sounds as they gain experience. Thus, some consonants and vowels with minor changes have been liberally grouped as similar. Those considered category 1 include:
 - a. [n, n] found in gloss 203 and 204
 - b. [s, tʃ, ¢] found in glosses 22, 38, 57
 - c. [nd3, nd3] found in gloss 76.
 - d. [k, h] found in gloss 192.
 - e. [b, v] found in gloss 8, 16, 68 and 198.
 - f. [AI, Ai] found in gloss 53.
 - g. Word initial [a, ja] found in gloss 165.

Other exceptional rules

Metathesis found in gloss 14

After pairs of items on two wordlists had been determined to be phonetically similar or dissimilar according to the criteria stated above, the percentage of items judged similar was calculated. This procedure was repeated for all linguistic varieties under consideration in the survey. The pair by pair counting procedure was greatly facilitated by use of the WordSurv computer program. It should be noted that the wordlist data as well as transcribed texts included in subsequent appendixes are field transcriptions and have not undergone thorough phonological and grammatical analysis.

Appendix C: Recorded Text Test (RTT)

Appendix C1

Record Text Testing Procedures

The extent to which speakers of related linguistic varieties understand one another can be studied by means of tape-recorded texts. Such studies investigate whether speakers of one variety understand a narrative text of another variety and are able to answer questions about the content of that text. The accuracy with which subjects answer these questions is taken as an index of their comprehension of that speech form. From the percentage of correct answers, the amount of intelligibility between speech forms is inferred. The recorded text testing used in this survey is based on the procedures described in Casad 1974 and Blair 1990.

Short, personal experience narratives are deemed to be most suitable for recorded text testing in that the content must be relatively unpredictable and the speech form should be natural. Folklore or other material thought to be widely known is avoided. A three to five minute story is recorded from a speaker of the regional vernacular, then checked with a group of speakers from the same region to ensure that the spoken forms are truly representative of that area. The story is then transcribed and a set of comprehension questions is constructed based on various semantic domains covered in the text. Normally, a set of fifteen or more questions is initially prepared. Some of the questions will prove unsuitable – perhaps because the answer is not in focus in the text or because the question is confusing to native speakers of the test variety. Unsuitable questions are then deleted from the preliminary set, leaving a minimum of ten final questions for each RTT. To ensure that measures of comprehension are based on subjects' understanding of the text itself and not on a misunderstanding of the test questions, these questions must be recorded in the regional variety of the test subjects. This requires an appropriate dialect version of the questions for each RTT at each test location.

In the RTTs used in this study, test subjects heard the complete story text once, after which the story was repeated with test questions and the opportunities for responses interspersed with necessary pauses in the recorded text. Appropriate and correct responses are directly extractable from the segment of speech immediately preceding the question, such that memory limitations exert a negligible effect and indirect inference based on the content is not required. Thus the RTT aims to be a close reflection of a subject's comprehension of the language itself, not of his or her memory, intelligence, or reasoning. The average (or mean) of the scores obtained from subjects at one test location is taken as a numerical indicator of the intelligibility between speakers of the dialects represented.

In order to ensure that the RTT is a fair test of the intelligibility of the test variety to speakers from the regions tested, the text is first tested with subjects from the region where the text was recorded. This initial testing is referred to as the hometown test. The hometown test serves to introduce subjects to the testing procedure in a context where intelligibility of the dialect is assumed to be complete since it is the native variety of test subjects. In addition, hometown testing ensures that native speakers of the text dialect could accurately answer the comprehension questions used to assess understanding of the text in non-native dialect areas. Once a text has been hometown tested with a minimum of ten subjects who have been able to correctly answer the selected comprehension questions with an average score of 90% or above, the test is considered validated.

It is possible that a subject may be unable to answer the test questions correctly simply because he or she does not understand what is expected. This is especially true with subjects unacquainted with test-taking. Therefore, a very short pre-test story with four questions is recorded in the local variety before beginning the actual testing. The purpose of this pre-test is to teach the subject what is expected according to the RTT procedures. If the subject is able to answer the pre-test questions, it is assumed that he or she would serve as a suitable subject. Each subject then participates in the hometown test in his or her native variety before participating in RTTs in non-native varieties. Occasionally, even after the pre-test, a subject fails to perform adequately on an already validated hometown test. Performances of such subjects are eliminated from the final evaluation, the assumption being that uncontrollable factors unrelated to the intelligibility of speech forms are skewing such test results. In this study, subjects performing at levels of less than 80% on their hometown test were eliminated from further testing.

When speakers of one linguistic variety have had no previous contact with that represented by the recorded text, test scores of the subjects from the test point tend to be more similar – especially when the scores are in the higher ranges. Such consistent scores are often interpreted to be closer reflections of the inherent intelligibility between speech forms. If the sample of subjects (a minimum of ten) accurately represents the speech community being tested in terms of the variables affecting intelligibility and the RTT scores show consistency, increasing the number of subjects should not significantly increase the range of variation of the scores.

However, when some subjects have had significant previous contact with the speech form recorded on the RTT, while others have not, the scores usually vary considerably, reflecting the degree of learning that has gone on through contact. For this reason, it is important to include a measure of dispersion which reflects the extent to which the range of scores varies from the mean the standard deviation. On an RTT with 100 possible points (that is, 100 percent), a standard deviation of more than 12 to 15 is considered high. If the standard deviation is relatively low, say 10 and below, and the mean score for subjects from the selected test point is high, the implication is that the community as a whole probably understands the test variety rather well, either because the variety in the RTT is inherently intelligible or because the variety has been acquired rather consistently and uniformly throughout the speech community. If the standard deviation is low and the mean RTT score is also low, the implication is that the community as a whole understands the test variety rather poorly and that regular contact has not facilitated learning of the test variety to any significant extent. If the standard deviation is high, regardless of the mean score, one implication is that some subjects have learned to comprehend the test variety better than others. In this last case, inherent intelligibility between the related varieties may be mixed with acquired proficiency, which results from learning through contact.

The relationship between RTT scores and their standard deviation can be seen in the following chart:

HIGH LOW Situation 1 Situation 2 Many people understand the story Most people understand the story. HIGH well, but some have difficulty. Average Situation 3 Situation 4 Score Many people cannot understand the Few people are able to LOW story, but a few are able to answer understand the story. correctly.

Standard Deviation

High standard deviations can result from other causes, such as inconsistencies in the circumstances of test administration and scoring or differences in attentiveness or intelligence of subjects. Researchers involved in recorded text testing need to be aware of the potential for skewed results due to such factors and must control them as much as possible through careful test development and administration.

Questionnaires administered at the time of testing can help researchers discover which factors are significant in promoting contact, which facilitates acquired intelligibility. Travel to or extended stays in other dialect regions, intermarriage between dialect groups, or contacts with schoolmates from other dialect regions are examples of the types of contact that can occur.

In contrast to experimentally controlled testing in a laboratory or classroom situation, the results of field-administered methods such as RTT cannot be completely isolated from potential biases. Recorded texts and test questions will vary in terms of their relative difficulty and complexity, or of the clarity of the recording. Comparisons of RTT results from different texts need to be made cautiously. It is therefore recommended that results from RTTs not be interpreted in terms of fixed numerical thresholds, but rather be evaluated in light of other indicators of intelligibility such as lexical similarity, dialect opinions, and reported patterns of contact and communication. In general, however, RTT mean scores of around 80 percent or higher with accompanying low standard deviations are usually taken to indicate that representatives of the test point dialect display adequate understanding of the variety represented by the recording. Conversely, RTT means below 60 percent are interpreted to indicate inadequate intelligibility.

Recorded Text Tests Stories

A dialect area study was conducted among the Irular people group during this survey. Two stories were collected. The following chart gives the list of information about the stories.

Name of the story	Location	Dialect area
My Education	Nakkupathy	Attapady Irula
Honey	Nadupathy	Walayar Irula

Irular Recorded Text Tests

- 1. My Education Story (story #3) was told on 20 January 2003, by a 30-year-old male with 10th education. He is a mother tongue speaker of Irula, born, brought up, and currently living in Nakkupathy village, Palakkad district, Kerala. Eleven questions for clarification were asked throughout this story.
- 2. The Honey Story (story #4 of those recorded) was collected on March 13, 2003, from a mother tongue speaker of Irula, born, brought up and currently living in Nadupathy village, Palakkad district, Kerala. Ten comprehension questions were asked of the respondents throughout the playing of the story.

B. Post HTT questions

- 1. Where do you think the person who told this story is from?
- 2. a. Is the speech good?
 - b. [If not good] What is not good about it?
- 3. Is this the way people talk in your village?
- 4. Did you hear any mixing with another language?

C. Post RTT questions

- 1. a. In what language do you think the story was told?
 - b. Where do you think the storyteller is from?
 - c. What helps you know the storyteller is from that place?
- 2. a. Is the speech good?
 - b. [if not good] What is not good about it?
- 3. a. Is the speech pure?
 - b. [if not pure] In what way is the speech not pure?
- 4. a. Is the storyteller's speech a little different or very different from your speech?
 - b. [if different] In what way is it different (pronunciation, words, style)?
- 5. How much of the story did you understand? (If subject given a place name the following questions are asked)
- 6. How many times have you gone to the area where you said the storyteller is from?
- 7. How often do people from that area come to your village?
- 8. Which story was most difficult/easy to understand? [asked in one test site after the final story]

Appendix D2 SRT Scoring Keys

The SRT results are expressed as a point total out of a possible 45 points (each sentence is 3 marks and 15x3 = 45). The following list shows the scoring system of SRT.

1.	Perfect, no error in the sentence	3 points
2.	One error in the sentence	2 points
3.	Two errors in the sentence	1 points
4.	Three or more errors in the sentence	0 points

The test administrator notes deviations on a score sheet. The following list suggests the ways to mark the different types of errors. Such markings are used on the training sheets.

1.	A word omitted from the sentence	О
2.	A wrong word or word ending (grammatical error), including	w
3.	Word substituted for another	S
4.	Any change of word order (counts as one error)	> or <
5.	A word distorted so as to alter meaning	~ ~
6.	A word or phrase added to sentence	+
7.	A word or phrase repeated (counts as one error)	R

Specific comments

For repeated words, if they realized their mistake and quickly corrected themselves the researchers tended not to count it as a mistake. If they intentionally repeated words, either in a row or elsewhere in the sentence, the researchers counted it as a mistake.

When a phrase was misplaced either forward (<) or backward (>), the researchers counted it only as one mistake for the sentence, not one mistake per word.

Sometimes, if the sentence was full of errors, the researchers just drew a squiggly line under it, not noting each error. Or if the subject simply "died" on the sentence (stopped trying or never said anything) the researchers simply drew a straight line under it.
