

A Synopsis of

English Syntax

by Eugene A. Nida

edited by Benjamin Elson

---

Linguistic series

Number four

A Publication of the Summer Institute of Linguistics of the University of Oklahoma

Norman

1964

Cuarta edición
Diciembre, 1964

Esta edición consta de 1000 ejemplares

Derechos Reservados
por el
Instituto Lingüístico de Verano
Hidalgo 166 México 22, D.F.

Impreso en México

Printed in Mexico

4-058

Editor's Note

During the past five years there has been an increasing interest in syntactic studies. The justification for the publication at this time of a study of English syntax written twenty years ago is that it is still the most exhaustive study of the subject based on the immediate constituent model. New models have been developed since: Chomsky's transformational model, Pike's tagmemic model. Since descriptive studies are being made using these, Nida's work will be useful for comparing the relative efficiency of the various models.

Eugene A. Nida was born in Oklahoma, attended the University of California at Los Angeles, and received the Ph. D. degree from the University of Michigan. He was associated for many years with the Summer Institute of Linguistics, and did field work in the Tarahumara language of northern Mexico. He is now Secretary of the Translations Department of the American Bible Society, and is the author of many books and articles in the field of linguistics.

The series of linguistic publications in which this volume is included is designed to provide in a relatively inexpensive form material for linguists, ethnologists, folklorists, and other scholars, including both native texts, as in the first three publications, and descriptive material, as in the present volume.

Table of Contents

	Page
Preface. . . . .	iii
Outline of Structures. . . . .	xi
Guide to the Relationship between Chapter Headings and Main Outline . . . . .	lxi
Guide to the Outline of the Text . . . . .	lxiii
Outline of English Syntax . . . . .	lxiii
 Chapter
I. Introduction . . . . .	1
II. Criticism of Former Treatments of English Syntax . . . . .	12
III. Subject Expressions in Independent Transitive Clauses . . . . .	40
IV. Predicate Expressions in Independent Transitive Clauses . . . . .	105
V. Independent Intransitive Clause Types . . . . .	153
VI. Independent Equational Clause Types . . . . .	160
VII. Independent Goal-Action Clause Types . . . . .	174
VIII. Attributives to Clauses . . . . .	186
IX. Dependent Exocentric Patterns . . . . .	190
X. Multiple Clause Frames. . . . .	214

English Syntax

	Page
XI. Minor Sentence Types. . . . .	.216
XII. Summary. . . . .	.220
Bibliography . . . . .	.225